

The Powdery Mildews (Erysiphales) of Britain & Ireland and a Census Catalogue for Wales

Ray G. Woods, Arthur O. Chater, Debbie A. Evans, Paul A. Smith & R. Nigel Stringer

“The Powdery Mildews (Erysiphales) of Britain & Ireland: An Identification Guide and Census Catalogue for Wales” is the latest in an award-winning series of books on phytoparasitic fungi written by the Welsh Microfungi Group. In 2019 Chater and Woods produced a guide and census catalogue to the powdery mildews (Erysiphales) of Wales. Since its publication many new records have been made and almost a hundred new host/powdery mildew associations discovered. The guide has been expanded with additional authors to include records from England, Scotland and Ireland. The identification guidance section has been updated in line with recent world literature, and its coverage widened by the inclusion of more taxa found on the near continent that might occur in Britain and Ireland.

The new guide includes the sections: Introduction to the Powdery Mildews, Conservation, Identification Guide and Examining Powdery Mildews. These are followed by the Powdery Mildews’ Identification Catalogue and Census Catalogue of the Powdery Mildews of Britain and Ireland and Vice-counties of Wales sorted by host and by Powdery Mildew. Using the book and knowing the host species it should be possible to identify most of the species collected and we hope it will encourage and stimulate more recording of this group.

The book is in A4 format, spirally bound with a plastic-coated cover and contains 116 pages and over 40 images.
